The Goal

In the late 1990's Nick Leefe and Bob Beck launched an effort to document the physical presence and movements of the great architect Dr. Alistair MacKenzie. That effort sparked club secretaries, historians, architects, professional writers, enthusiasts – in short, a global community of MacKenzie admirers – to share their knowledge. This, the 16th Revision of “The Dr. Alistair MacKenzie Chronology,” is the latest product of that collective and continuing generosity, and considerably expands on the previous revision.

with best wishes from Alistair MacKenzie

Why?

Why are MacKenzie's whereabouts important? A timeline establishes a foundation of fact. Upon this foundation researchers can build their narratives of history. Without this fact base, large gaps in time appear, and speculation is the all too common and unfortunate result - the quality of scholarship is impoverished. The ramifications can be significant - original design features and perhaps entire courses disappear or suffer disfiguration, writings are misunderstood or misinterpreted, attributions are missed or made improperly. As readers, as golfers, and as caretakers of the game of golf, we suffer.

A timeline is more than a series of dry facts. To read this timeline is to know MacKenzie the designer, and yet gain a window into the man. With this timeline, we are given the gift of seeing, in a single sweep of pages, MacKenzie's global, decades-long pursuit of excellence in design. A pursuit that ended over 70 years ago, but whose ramifications and influence, improbably, continue down to our day.

The 16th Revision

This revision continues the effort and narrows the gaps in the chronology considerably from the previous revision, with over 430 new entries and a number of revised and expanded entries. Surprisingly, the true number of golf courses MacKenzie designed and advised upon during his career is not known definitively, and so the authors hope this revision, like prior editions, will spur additional research and lead many more people and clubs to come forth with information unknown to the golfing world.

Next Steps

The process of compiling and continuing the research to update the MacKenzie Chronology has sparked two additional significant pieces of scholarship:

- * A detailed list of the golf courses MacKenzie designed, remodelled, or consulted to, and;
- * A bibliography of MacKenzie's writings, both public writings in the form of newspapers, magazine articles and books, as well as private correspondence, plans, and reports.

For a man who achieved such a rich and productive career, surprisingly few primary source documents are known to researchers. Some have been lost to fire, some to time. The authors therefore urge anyone with information on Dr. MacKenzie to contact them.

Around 1909	Month not known	Hallamshire GC, Sheffield, England. MacKenzie visits the course, no detail on what advice he may have given them. In an article about the course he wrote for the 'Sheffield Telegraph', "Ever since I first visited Hallamshire, nearly 20 years ago, there have been frequent changes." He laments that the club consulted a number of experts – presumably including himself – but had "altered and tinkered" with their advice. This may date a Mackenzie involvement here to around 1909.	'Sheffield Telegraph', 3, 7, 10, 14, 17 & 21 July 1928 Suzanne Ashmore, Neil Crafter
Around 1909	Month not known	Chesterfield GC, Sheffield, England. MacKenzie visits the course, no detail on what advice he may have given them. In an article about the course he wrote for the 'Sheffield Telegraph', "It is nearly 20 years ago since I advised the Chesterfield Golf Club" , which would place the date of his advice to the club around 1909. He then goes on to say that "After all these years absence from Chesterfield I can not see the smallest sign of the club having taken my advice in any respect. On the other hand I was informed that the design of the course was attributed to me. All I can say is that if I were in any way responsible for it I must have been an amazingly bad golf course architect."	'Sheffield Telegraph', 3, 7, 10, 14, 17 & 21 July 1928 Suzanne Ashmore, Neil Crafter

1926	November 7	Arrived Melbourne on Sunday morning from Adelaide.	Date of arrival back in Melbourne not confirmed but most likely inferred from RAGC minutes
1926	November 7	Article mentions that MacKenzie will be in Los Angeles next month to work with George C. Thomas and William P. Bell at the Fox Hills CC outside of Culver City. Plans to inspect course with Thomas and Bell. MacKenzie will act as a "guest" artist. Mentioned in article that MacKenzie arranged a meeting with them after hearing so much talk about the property.	'LA Times' November 7, 1926 Tom Naccarato
1926	November 8	MacKenzie writes to Royal Sydney GC confirming his fee of 250 pounds for a full report and plans. He hoped to leave Melbourne in "two or three weeks time and will let you know the exact date later". MacKenzie speaks to golf writer in Melbourne about his work at Royal Adelaide on this day after his return from Adelaide.	Letter to RSGC held by the Club 'The Herald', Melbourne, November 10 1926, "Dr MacKenzie has just returned from advising on the remodelling of the Royal Adelaide links. I saw him for a few moments on Monday, and got but meagre particulars of his work..." Neil Crafter

1926	November 8-17	In Melbourne and Barwon Heads, undertakes inspections, plans and reports for Kingston Heath, Barwon Heads and Victoria GCs. At Barwon Heads, MacKenzie is likely to have stayed at the golf club, which has residential accommodation.	John Lovell puts dates as follows: November 8-10 Kingston Heath, inspections and plans November 11-13 Barwon Heads, inspection and verbal report November 15-17 Victoria, inspections and plans According to an article about the Victoria Golf Club's new course in 'Golf' magazine of February 1 1927, MacKenzie "spent several days on the Cheltenham layout" Neil Crafter
1926	November 18	The Council of the Royal Melbourne GC receives MacKenzie's report and plan and records this in their minutes of 18.11.26. Plans may have been received prior to this date.	RMGC Council minutes of 18 November 1926
1926	November 19	MacKenzie writes to Kingston Heath GC enclosing report and green plan of the new 15 th , promising, "the large plan is arriving under separate cover" .	Letter to KHGC held by the Club

'The Age', Melbourne, Monday November 29 1926, reports that "Dr. A. MacKenzie's report and plan of the course, also of the new greens, has been received and has given much satisfaction to the members." Neil Crafter
1926	November 21-27	MacKenzie stayed at St. Andrews Guest House at Flinders (John Lovell) on the Mornington Peninsula south of Melbourne and undertook inspections and design work including the preparation of a plan for Flinders Golf Club.	John Lovell suggests he spent a week at Flinders. 'The Age', Melbourne, Thursday November 25 1926 has a report from Flinders from Wednesday 24 November saying that "after spending two days in inspecting the links, he drew up a plan for the remodelling of the course." John Lovell, Neil Crafter

1926	Late November – early December	MacKenzie wrote letter appointing Alex Russell as his partner in Australasia.	John Lovell says November 29 but letter is undated
1926	Late November – early December	MacKenzie submits his report and plans to the Victoria GC.	Victoria Golf Club Minutes of Meeting of December 2 1926 indicated “Report of Dr. MacKenzie and suggested bunkering and course alterations of the Cheltenham course together with plans of course and bunkering of various holes were received and adopted.” Neil Crafter
1926	Date not certain, possibly November 30 or December 2	Train to Sydney, New South Wales. Some confusion about actual date of this train trip. Did he travel direct to Sydney or perhaps travel via Canberra with a stopover? This may explain the difference between the possible departure dates and his known arrival in Sydney on December 4.	John Lovell has MacKenzie travelling on overnight train, departing November 30 and arriving December 1. ‘The Brisbane Courier’, Brisbane, Saturday November 27, suggests that “Dr. MacKenzie leaves Melbourne for Sydney on Tuesday, and remains there for about a week before coming on to Brisbane.” That Tuesday was November 30. ‘The Herald’, Melbourne, Saturday December 4 1926, says MacKenzie “left Melbourne on Thursday for Sydney” . That Thursday was December 2. ‘The Brisbane Courier’, Saturday December 11 1926 states “Before leaving Melbourne for Sydney last week, Dr. A. MacKenzie...” . Neil Crafter
1926	December 1	MacKenzie to leave for Sydney “in a day or two” .	‘The Herald’, Melbourne, Wednesday December 1 1926, reports that “Dr MacKenzie, whose latest work has been in connection with the Flinders and Barwon Heads links, will be leaving for Sydney in a day or two.” Neil Crafter

1926	December 4	Arrived in Sydney and travelled to Royal Sydney Golf Club where he stayed for the duration of his time in Sydney. Report that the plans of the existing Indooroopilly course were sent to MacKenzie (most likely to Sydney) for his consideration prior to visiting Brisbane.	'The Sydney Morning Herald', Monday December 6 has MacKenzie arriving in Sydney on Saturday December 4, "He has been asked by the Royal Sydney Golf Club, the Kensington Golf Club, the Pymble Golf Club and the N.S.W. Golf Club to inspect their courses and to give advice". The "Kensington" referred to is The Australian GC, which is located in the Sydney suburb of Kensington, while there is no record of MacKenzie having consulted to the Pymble GC during his time in Sydney. 'Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, December 4 1926 Neil Crafter
1926	December 4 – 10	In Sydney, various inspections, reports and plans for Royal Sydney, The Australian and the NSW Golf Clubs. Must have seen Moore Park in Sydney as he suggests it is the only decent municipal course in Sydney.	John Lovell puts dates to each as follows: December 1-3 Royal Sydney December 4-7 The Australian December 8 Report to Royal Sydney December 9 Report to The Australian and inspection of NSW GC 'Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, January 29 1927 Neil Crafter
1926	December 10	MacKenzie scheduled to leave Sydney for Brisbane.	'The Sydney Morning Herald', Sydney, Thursday, 9 December 1926, "On Friday Dr. MacKenzie will go on to Brisbane, where he will examine links at Indooroopilly, besides those of the Royal Queensland and Brisbane golf clubs. At the end of the month he will sail for New Zealand." Neil Crafter
1926	December 11	Arrived in Brisbane on Saturday evening by the mail train from Sydney. Met at the station by representatives of Royal Queensland GC, Brisbane GC and Indooroopilly GC (now St Lucia GC).	'The Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, Monday, 13 December 1926 Neil Crafter

1926	December 12	Visited Yeerongpilly (Brisbane GC) in the morning and was guest of the BGC President Mr E. Macartney at lunch. In the afternoon he visited Royal Queensland's course at Hamilton and was met by various club officials.	'The Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, Monday, 13 December 1926
1926	December 13	At Yeerongpilly in the morning and Royal Queensland in the afternoon.	'The Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, Monday, 13 December 1926
1926	December 16	Royal Queensland GC inspections and plans. MacKenzie's report for Royal Sydney put before the Committee, also from the Minutes of the Royal Sydney Golf Club meeting on this date, record that the report has been received from Dr. MacKenzie and referred to the Green Committee. John Lovell puts dates to these as follows: December 20 Bonnie Doon GC inspection December 21-23 Manly GC inspection, report and plans December 24 NSW GC routing and plans December 27-28 Bonnie Doon GC inspection and plans December 29 NSW GC plans December 30 Report to Manly GC December 31 NSW GC inspection and report

1926	December 24	MacKenzie reports for Indooroopilly and Brisbane noted in newspaper report.	'Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, December 24 1926 Neil Crafter
1926	December 29	Letter advising MacKenzie that his report was considered and approved at meeting of 16 December and some works are being implemented currently.	Letter to MacKenzie from Royal Sydney GC Neil Crafter
1926	December 30	MacKenzie guest speaker at a luncheon at the Millions Club in Sydney. He reportedly spoke on Australia's passion for golf, admiration for some of the Sydney courses, including Killara, Rose Bay and Manly. The Killara reference is interesting as there has been no previous record that he consulted with Killara. The Millions Club changed its name later to the Sydney Club.	'Sydney Morning Herald', Sydney, Wednesday December 29 1926 records that "Dr. Alister MacKenzie, golf architect, will be the guest of the Millions Club at luncheon in the club rooms to-morrow" .  'Table Talk', Melbourne, January 20 1927 reported that "Dr MacKenzie carried away with him concrete evidence of the country's passion for golf and of its prosperity, in the shape of £2400, being fees from 19 clubs for reports submitted by the expert during his two months sojourn in the country. He was further inundated with requests from other clubs for reports, but time did not permit him to make them." Neil Crafter
1926	December 31	MacKenzie boarded the Union Company's steamer 'S. S. Marama' at Port Jackson, Sydney, Australia bound for Auckland, New Zealand. Originally meant for a departure that day, but due to late cargo additions the 'Marama' did not leave port until the early hours of January 1, 1927.	'The Herald', Melbourne, Wednesday January 5 1927 says that MacKenzie "left Sydney for New Zealand on Friday" , Friday being December 31 John Lovell, personal comment re departure time
1926	December	Los Medanos Golf and CC. Article states that ground to be broken. This could possibly be the course they would later build in Pittsburgh, California. (ST)	'Fairway Magazine' December 1926 Sean Tully
1927	January 1	MacKenzie departed Sydney.	John Lovell

1927		January 4	Auckland, New Zealand. 'S. S. Marama' berthed at Central Wharf in Auckland at 9.25am.	'New Zealand Herald', Auckland, January 5 1927 The Herald also reported that "A visitor to Auckland is Dr. A. MacKenzie of Leeds... His first task in New Zealand will be to prepare a new layout for the Maungakikie Golf Club, after which he will undertake similar work in other parts of the Dominion." MacKenzie was also photographed upon his arrival into Auckland. Neil Crafter
1927		January 8	MacKenzie's report for Royal Queensland described as having been received. Presumably completed in Sydney before his departure and mailed to Queensland.	'Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, January 8 1927. Report calls him "Dr. Alan MacKenzie". Neil Crafter
1927		January 15	Royal Queensland commences implementing MacKenzie's plans with the construction of bunkering.	'Brisbane Courier', Brisbane, January 15 1927, suggests that "impressive bunkers are in the course of construction and very formidable they appear." It also suggested that "The Clubs that retained Dr. MacKenzie have now had plans prepared showing the courses as mapped out by him. These are being framed, and will be exhibited in the club houses, so that the members will be able to see the projected alterations." The wording indicates that MacKenzie may not have drawn plans for the Brisbane clubs. This is contradicted by a report from 'Golf' magazine of February 1 1927 that states "In all three cases he demonstrated vastly improved bunkering systems and provided the clubs concerned with plans and diagrams to enable them to carry out the new strategic as against the old penal ideas in this work." Neil Crafter

1931	December 9, 10 or 11	Canterbury Hotel, and Lake Merced GC, San Francisco, California. MacKenzie writes undated note to Adrian Wilson of Pasatiempo. Note said that he would not be out to the golf at Merced today but that Wilson could invite as many competitors as he liked out to Pasatiempo to play. Given where the note comes in the Wilson scrapbook, the tournament being played was the National Match Play Open Championship held at Lake Merced from 9 – 13 December 1931. The first two days were stroke play qualifying and then match play with the final on Sunday. MacKenzie states in his note "we are not returning till Sunday" , which would seem to indicate that he would not be back to Lake Merced until Sunday 13 th for the final.
